UNION GOSPEL TEMPERANCE MEETING.—Every Sunday afternoon at Dodd's Hall, at 4 o'clock. All are invited.

Union Temperance Meeting.

The supporters of these meetings do not seem to take a vacation from their efforts to promote the cause of Temperance or Sabbath Observance, and the meetings continue as usual. After the opening exercises Mr. Williams spoke of the importance of thorough, earnest work on the part of all members of the Reform Club, and all the friends of temperance. Continued, persistent effort was necessary in this as in all other departments of Christian labor.

Mr. Bourne read extracts from an article in the Christian Intelligencer on the temperance laws, in which the Civil Damage, the Excise, and the High License laws may all be called good, but better than any, in some respects, and next best to absolute closing up of all rum-shops (prohibition) is the law prohibiting the sale of liquor to minors, on the principle that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Keep the children and minors away from all contact with rum, and the number of drunkards will vastly diminish in less than ten years. Statistics were given showing that the Chicago Citizens' League for the Suppression of the Sale of Liquor to Minors found that about 30,000 boys and girls frequented liquor saloons in Chicago. By vigorous action they had nearly put an end to this infamous work, and had saved the city at least $500,000 in preventing the arrest and punishment of minors. He also referred to the remarks of Mr. J. N. Baldwin at the last meeting in relation to the services rendered to the cause of temperance in former days by Rev. George Duffield, especially in stirring up the citizens to send remonstrances and protests against the issue of licenses. Would this not be an effectual mode now of preventing the evil?

Mr. N. Russell was satisfied that united, earnest work would do a great deal of good, and cordially approved of the suggestion to send in remonstrances, largely signed, showing the opposition felt by the great majority of our citizens against renewal and granting of any more licenses in this town. He had no doubt but that it would be duly regarded by the licensing authority, and hoped that the plan would be adopted.

Mr. Biddulph coincided in this view, and believed that if earnest friends of the cause of law and order in Bloomfield will give prompt attention to obtaining signatures, hundreds of names could be had in opposition to granting any more licenses. He believed that the licenses of six or seven liquor dealers expired in September; and it ought to be shown to the magistrates that they are not needed for the welfare of the town, or the supply of any real want. Magistrates could not fail to give heed to remonstrances signed by reputable citizens and taxpayers.

Mr. J. N. Baldwin gave further account of the methods pursued at the time referred to when Bloomfield had not one liquor shop within its boundaries for several years, owing to the nature of its population at that time, and the strong efforts used to prevent issuing licenses. He believed that now similar efforts would be successful and that not only would nearly all Christian and temperance people sign such remonstrances, but many of those who drank ardent spirits would sign so that temptation might be removed. If the plan were tried and a thorough canvass made hundreds of names could be obtained to protest against granting the licenses. At the time referred to so strong was the feeling against rum-selling that the hotel-keeper (Mr. Archdeacon) could not obtain a license.

Mr. Batchelder said there were too many rum-shops already, and every available method should be tried to reduce their number. The mode suggested was well worthy of trial. By shutting up the liquor shop a great source of Sabbath desecration could be cut off. Christians should especially engage in temperance efforts and not care for obstacles, but persevere until victory was secured.

Mr. Vanderwerken spoke of the great importance of obtaining the combined efforts of professing Christians against the liquor traffic. He said that there was too much apathy among Christians on the subject of intemperance; they needed to be stirred up to work earnestly against the foe. If Christians would do their duty to the tempted and remove the sources of intemperance, the work would soon be accomplished. The churches should arouse to their mission and work with vigor, and those around would respond to such effort and join in the battle against the rum traffic. On motion of Mr. Russell, a committee was appointed to draw up a form of protest against licensing any liquor shops in September, and place copies of the protest in circulation for signatures. Committee to consist of Messrs. Williams and Batchelder, with power to add to their number.

Mr. Russell was placed on the committee, and Miss Biddulph as representing the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Letter from Saratoga.

UNITED STATES HOTEL, SARATOGA, AUG. 24.
The long expected and anxiously awaited Garden Party came off last week, and the Saratoga season culminated in a blaze of splendor. The hotels were crowded to overflowing, and lodging out their guests. This was the only Garden Party to be given this season, the July party having been postponed on account of the death of General Grant, and as it was the only event of the kind to take place this summer, it was even more than usually brilliant. The ladies appeared in the finest toilettes worn this season, and the display of diamonds was something unprecedented, even here in Saratoga, where the glitter of gems rivals the glow of the lamps. All that there was in Saratoga of youth, beauty, wealth, and distinction was gathered at the Garden Party, and the vast throng represented the best society of the republic—since here were gathered men and women from every State. Foreign lands were also well represented by several counts, marquises, and barons—with ladies of high degree, who vied with our own belles in the elegance of their costumes.

The legal lights of the country found time to rest from their arduous labors at the lawyer's convention, and all put in an appearance at the Garden Party. The clergy also found it no sin to attend this brilliant affair, since they did not go on the platform for dancing. In fact, Saratoga has become a favorite place for the clergy, and several of them take an occasional look into the ball room, without experiencing the slightest compunction of conscience. It is said, however, that the reverend brethren are seriously afflicted with jealousy this season, because of the great popularity of the Rev. Dr. Burchard, who has been an habitué of Saratoga for many years—and who does not intend to allow the maledictions of the politicians to deprive him of his usual allowance of spring water—and the varied charms of the Saratoga season. Perhaps no man in the place excites more curiosity than the reverend doctor. The Democrats, especially—who are here in force looking out for the fall campaign—all want to behold the man who gave such an unexpected turn to the late election—and laud him to the skies. It has even been suggested that Dr. Burchard be sent to Rome in place of Keiley. At any rate, the administration ought to remember him handsomely. The doctor being not only a tall, dignified, handsome man, of the Washington type—but a widower besides, is immensely popular with the widows here—all of whom have their bright eyes upon him. And if widows may be said to abound anywhere, it is here in Saratoga. Saratoga is, in fact, a kind of widows' paradise. But widows have long been declared to be dangerous, and since the widows have taken it into their wise little heads to capture Dr. Burchard, even the Republican party may be revenged at last.

They tell a good story of President Cleveland's success as an agriculturist, as told by himself to some friends while coming this way en route to the Adirondacks, where he is resting from the torment of the office-seekers. The President stated that wishing to take some exercise between his arduous labors he daily tilled the kitchen garden of the White House and undertook, with the assistance of his gardener, to raise early spring dainties for his own table. Especially was he anxious to have green peas before his neighbors. Every day he took a look at his peas, and every day boasted of their marvellous growth to his friends and every day he looked to find a dish of the White House peas upon his table. But the spring days went by, summer came and Washington was full of peas, but the President was still waiting for his to be ripe, and so he waited until one day some friend happened to say to him: "Why, Mr. President, your peas have been ready for use these ten days; they are too ripe now for the table."

It is to be feared that too many of the Democrats who thought they sowed a plentiful crop last year from which they expected to reap a rich harvest will find their peas too ripe for the picking when the time comes for gathering.

The Democratic Convention is to be held here next month and the politicians are already invading the place. Aspirants for political honors abound, and possible governors, mayors and aldermen may be found in every piazza corner.

Saratoga is now at the height of her gayety. Brilliant hops are given nightly at some one of the hotels. Emma Thursby will give a concert this week in the United States ball room—which will be a success. Mr. Leopold Godowski, the boy pianist gave a delightful piano recital last week, assisted by Mr. Nathan Franko with his wonderful violin.

A great deal of excitement attends the last days of the races, and the ladies are becoming quite reckless in their betting. One lady won fifteen hundred dollars the other day—but how much she has lost since we cannot say. Betting is a kind of fever which never stops at winning. SOPHIE SPARKLE.

A very charming and at the same time instructive study of birds, their habits and habits, in eleven different sketches, by Bradford Torrey, has been issued by Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., under the title Birds in the Bush. Mr. Torrey in this volume contributes a delightful addition to the study of bird-life. He is a genuine lover of the feathered songsters, and renders every page of his book fascinating by his cheerful descriptions, making them as entertaining a series of ornithological studies as can be imagined.

Self-adjusting to any position. Strong, durable and light. The White Mountain Hammock Chair differs from all other stationary or reclining chairs in that it is better, stronger and simpler, adapted to the house, lawn, porch or camp, and is full of quiet comfort and rest. Is far superior to the hammock in every way, and can be put up so as to be always in the shade. By the peculiar construction it is balanced in all positions, requiring no fastenings to keep it in place. The foot-rest can be quickly and easily adjusted to suit the tallest or shortest persons. The seat is made of strong canvas, strong perfectly, the entire length, without drawing the clothing tightly around the body, thus making it much cooler than a hammock.

THE GREATEST OF THEM ALL.

The picture of GENERAL GRANT, which we presented to our customers Saturday was (as we expected) the greatest of all our past successes. Many dealers in the city offered us as high as 20c each for it, but all to no purpose, as we prepared them solely for our patrons. As the rush for them has not abated, we have ordered our artists to strike off 25,000 more, which we feel will meet the great demand. In order that all may be accommodated, we shall continue the distribution one week longer. We hope that none will fail to procure a copy.
